“ My heart hurts that you are gone. Though we haven't spoken in years, I've always wished the best for you. The years of friendship we shared, and countless memories with you and the kids, are ones I will forever cherish. I can't thank you enough for giving me the privilege of being your daughter's god mother. I am honored to be a small part of raising that amazing young lady.

“ Oh Amber, I can't believe you're gone. I remember so many memories both good and bad. Camping with you with grandma Dar and Grandpa Mike. The flat tire on the way home. Eating under the dessert table at Grandma Dee's during holidays. Being with you when you found out you were pregnant with Aizen. Girl I am so happy that you're no longer suffering through this hell of a life you were living but miss you so much. I wish I could have done more to help you but you are with your momma now. Just know I love you and one day we will meet again.

“ Thank you for being the mom of my child. Thank you for loving him and growing him in your womb for nine months. Thank you for sacrificing your body so they may have life. Thank you for giving us the opportunity to be his Mom and Dad. You and I are two different people, so undoubtedly, we will parent differently. On this coming Mother's Day, I will celebrate you, the mom of our child. I know you will be watching from above and cheering for our son with every endeavor he tries and as he grows into a handsome young man. We will take exceptionally good care of him for you Amber. May your soul Rest in Peace. Jolleen & Scott Yungbauer

“ You were loved by many and will be missed by many. I will continue to raise our daughter to be a respect woman. At least now you can see your momma again that you so greatly missed. Prayers go out to the rest of the family. This isn't the end but a new beginning for her. Now she can watch over you as many have helped watch over her.
