“ Irene would ask me to do her hair whenever the the shop was not open. I would tell her to have it washed and I would be in after it was set. Irene would try to pay me and I would tell her to put it away and save for when the real hair dresser was here. Then she would tell me I should have gone to school I would have a better hair setter than that lady was. then she would laugh and try to put the money in my pocket.
